MANY ASHAMED OF THE BANNER

Of Love, Which is Floating
Over us, Says Evangelist
Willis

SPOKE TO LARGE AUDIENCE

Meetings Start off at the First Presbyterian Church with Much Enthusiasm

The series of special meetings began at the First Presbyterian church last evening with Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Hayes Willis, the Interdenominational evangelists, assisting the pastor, Rev. J. F. Cowling.

The meetings started off with much enthusiasm and the outlook for the future is encouraging. Mr. Willis is a good speaker and has a pleasing personality. His wife will have charge of much of the singing.

The evangelist spoke last night to a large and appreciative audience on "The Banner of Love is Over Us," taking his text from the Song of Solomon.

The speaker brought out the fact that the banner of Christ as a good flag to follow, but it was a deplorable thing that many of the people are ashamed to carry it high, but rather trail it in the dust.

Mr. Willis spoke of how willingly men would go out and even face the cannon's mouth and death to defend the flag of their country, and how they would stand by their lodges and societies, but fail to stand loyally by the "Banner of Love."

The congregation was well impressed with Mr. Willis and the solo which he sung, entitled "Perishing," was greatly appreciated.

The evangelist will speak this evening on the subject "Where Art Thou?" Every one is cordially invited.

FOUND GUILTY ON DOUBLE CHARGE

Alec Palmer Tried in Squire
Jackson's Court and Fined
$24.85

Alec Palmer was tried in Squire Jackson's court Tuesday on the double charge of drunkenness and attempting to use deadly weapons on City Marshal Price, a few nights ago when the officer was called to the Palmer home in West First street, to settle some family trouble.

The defendant was fined one dollar and costs on the charge of intoxication and five dollars and costs on the other charge, amounting in all to $24.85. He paid the fine and costs and was given his liberty.

City Marshal Price was called to the Palmer home again last night, because of domestic troubles, but no arrests were made.

Here's Where the Fun Comes In

Miss Mary Lewis, a grade teacher in the Jackson school in North Jackson street has a note that she received from the mother of a young hopeful this week and which she prizes very highly. One of her pupils, a boy of loud manners, but a louder odor (for he was just perfectly "filthy") has caused her a deal of annoyance since the recent promotion when she received the "prize package." Enduring it as long as possible she finally sat down and wrote a note to the boy's mother saying she would like for the parent to see that the little fellow was cared for and kept clean. The following day she received an answer, written on a torn paper sack:

"Miss Lewis, Johnny haint no rose. Don't smell him, learn him."

MEETINGS CONTINUE WITH MUCH INTEREST

Evangelist Hawker, of the Second
M. E. Church Preaching to Large Audiences

The revival service at the Second M. E. church which have been in progress for several weeks, continue with unabated interest and enthusiasm.

Rev. W. M. Hawker, of Louisville, Ky., an evangelist of much prominence among the colored people, is doing the preaching.

The evangelist spoke to a large audience last evening on "The Four Faces." The meetings will continue indefinitely.

AUTOMATIC IS WORKING GOOD

Pessimistic Wall is Drowned out by a Almost Perfect Condition

A THING TO BE PROUD OF

Is Our Advanced Telephone
Plant and Service—Causes
Wonderment and Admiration

The new automatic telephone system is now in good working order and in fine shape. When it was first installed, naturally there were a number of "leaks" which had to be plugged and a number of repairs that could only come after usage of the plant, still the pessimistic wall went up that "the dern thing never will work right." Happily this was a fallacy.

Now the automatic plant is giving the telephone employes less trouble than the old manual system, in fact, the trouble calls are reduced one-fourth, as against conditions under the old system. Yesterday there were but four trouble calls, the previous day but six and the day before that but five. And this, too, in view of the heavy winds and a stormy night last week.

Rushville citizens can point with pride to their telephone system. It is a common thing to hear strangers within our gates look upon it with wonder and no little admiration.

In a few weeks the entire system of wiring will be overhauled and under the supervision of Supt. George Davis, new cross arms will be put in many places and other necessary improvements made.

MILLINERY SEASON IS NEAR AT HAND

Openings Will Occur Next Month and Spring and Summer Stocks are Coming in

Easter does not come until late this year, but local millinery houses are making preparations for the spring trade and large shipments of goods are being received. Easter falls on April 19th, and milliners will have ample time to get their stock ready for the spring opening which are generally held the week before.

The styles this season are exceedingly pretty and the prices as usual are exceedingly high. However, the man who stands the bill finds some consolation in the fact that Easter comes late and he will be able to stand them off a little longer.

California has snipped more than 8,500 carloads of lemons east the past year.

HUNYAK COMING THRO' THE RYE

Foriegners in Rushville Subsist on Bread, Onions and a Few Kinds Words

THE WORLD'S OTHER HALF

Thirty Sons of Sunny Lower Europe Huddled Together in Five-Room House

One half of the world does not know how the other half lives—possibly because a majority of the inhabitants are men and not gabbing women. Even here in Rushville we do not know how the other fellow lives and in many instances why they live. Probably this fact is not presented in a more forcible manner than in the case of the "Hunyaks" who are working here on the sewer and who live all huddled up in one house of five rooms, thirty in number. They occupy the little brick house on North Jackson street, near Seventh. One little lone woman is the mother of this aggregation and attends to all the household duties, which are not many; neither are they varied.

The little colony of foreigners eat but a small amount, if any, cooked food, and their diet consists principally of rye bread, water, large onions, and a whole portion of "after-dinner talk." They jabber and jabber while engaged in eating and to hear them one is firmly convinced that the very birds of the air must have a language of their own, for indeed their chirping sounds more intelligent than some of the sounds emitted from the Hunyaks.

At one of the local bakeries they have a standing order for one hundred loaves of rye bread and on Sunday they eat an extra loaf each, making the week's supply amount to 730.

Saturday night is the only time they indulge in any luxuries whatever. The end of the week's toil finds a committee of three or four carrying as many cases of beer to their home of their shoulders.

When the Hunyaks were working on North Harrison street, one of the residents who had more heart than experience or judgment, gave the "a poor fellow" as she called him, a bowl of hot soup. The next day at noon there were over twenty of the laborers sitting about in her yard waiting for the good "lady bountiful."

But they all enjoy life in their peculiar way, in fact they are now eating their "white bread" and making more money than they ever dreamed of making when they lived in southern Europe. And most of it is being sent back to their families and the Hunyak will follow when he has amassed what he deems a suitable fortune, to spend the remainder of his days in a life of ease.

They come to this country in bondage, inasmuch as a company organized for the purpose of bringing immigrants here, furnish them with enough funds to come and provide for their families while they are away. Then out of their first wages comes the money to the "exporting" company, and in all probability a large interest must be paid together with the principle. The Hunyaks come here in companies and are accompanied by a representative of the "Shylocks" who bring them here.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

"Well, you can say what you please about Glenwood," said Trustee John F. Mapes today, "green goods and all that sort of thing, but I want to tell you that there isn't a town the size of Glenwood in the whole country that has the improvements and up-to-date business houses found there. And no better people 'ever lived under the shining sun' he concluded.

LINCOLN DAY WAS OBSERVED

Black Children of Freedom
Remember Martyr President with Exercises

AT WASHINGTON SCHOOL

Under Direction of Prof. J. H.
Williams, the Occassion was Fittingly Remembered

Washington school held special exercises today in memory of the martyr president, Abraham Lincoln. The principal, Prof. Williams, discussed the life of Lincoln, emphasizing the great principles for which he stood, and the work these principles are doing for the betterment of mankind. He showed the place Lincoln occupies as an illustrious martyr to liberty, and how much the privilege of liberty means to the black man, pointing out the sacred duty that lies to the hand of everyone, both black and white, to rightfully use these enlarged opportunities that have come to the American citizen as the fruitage of noble lives such as Lincoln lived.

After these preliminary remarks, the following program was rendered: Song, "America," "Little and Great,"—Earl Mabra. Song, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean,"

Gettysburg Address—Ethel Buckner. Song, "Sweet and Low," "Psalm of Life,"—Irene Taylor. Song, "Soldier's Farewell," "The Day is Done,"—Ethel Buckner. Song, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Selection from Second Inaugural Address—Blaine Moore. Song, "Old Folks at Home," Concord Hymn—Arvalley Easley. Song, "How Can I Leave Thee," "Life"—Frances Marshall. "Crossing the Bar,"—Minnie Brown. Song, Medley

The pupils entered heartily into the spirit of the occasion, and the program was rendered in a manner befitting the hour.

Max Gaddis, of New Castle, was Here Today Confering with Local Officers

Max P. Gaddis, of New Castle, was here today to confer with the officers of the Watson club as to the manner of their organization, by-laws, etc. With this in hand Mr. Gaddis will proceed with the organization of a Henry county Watson club and will have plenty of assistance in the work, according to the press of that city.

The Rushville club is the original one in the State and was organized to boost Watson for the gubernatorial nomination. If he is successful in this, the club will boom him for election next fall.

REMARKABLE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. David Conner
Celebrate Sixty-Third Wedding Anniversary

BOTH IN GOOD HEALTH

Mrs. Conner Has Lived all her Life Within Half Mile of where she was Born

A most remarkable wedding anniversary was celebrated in this city yesterday when Mr. and Mrs. David Conner observed the occasion, being married sixty-three years. This is the record for Rush county and indeed few couples in the State have been married so long.

The Conners were married Feb. 11th, 1845. Mr. Conner is a native of Franklin county and was born in 1823, about the time the swaddling clothes were being arranged for the town Rushville, this country being a wilderness then. Mrs. Conners was born in Noble township in 1827, and lived all her life within a half mile of the place where she was born. But one person is living who attended their wedding.

While Mr. Conner suffered a stroke of paralysis last year, both are now enjoying good health and spent their sixty-third anniversary in excellent spirits.

This winter they came to this city to remain with their son, S. C. Conner in East Seventh street until spring, when they will again return to their home in Noble township.

COMPLAINT MADE AGAINST A CHANGE

Business Men Kick Against Having Post Mark on Back of Letters Discontinued

Local business men will be much interested in an agitation which has been started by the first assistant postmaster general to discontinue the stamping on the back of letters the time of receipt by the distributing postoffice. He advocates the move as an economy, saving thereby the salary of a few clerks.

Many will disagree with the first assistant postmaster general as to the wisdom of such a course holding that the stamp is almost of vital interest.

With such record as it establishes on the back of the letter as to the time of its receipt by the postoffice, it enables letters to be traced with more facility, and it has been the means of explaining many complaints about delayed mails.

REPUBLICANS WARMING UP

Latter Part of Week

SELECTION OF DELEGATES

Representative to the Various Conventions will be Named in Primary Convention

Sizzling, steaming, boiling and running over is the political pot under the heat and fire of enthusiasm of the rank and file of Republicans in Rush county now.

Friday and Saturday of this week the outer townships meet in mass convention to select delegates and alternates for the State, Congressional, Judicial, Joint-Senatorial and county conventions. The county convention, which bids fair to be a warm one, will convene in this city on March 12th.

The Republicans of Rushville township will meet Friday in primary convention in the assembly room at the court house at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, when delegates will be selected for all the conventions save the county convention and a township trustee will be nominated. There are four candidates in the field: T. E. Gregg, J. Vincent Young, B. W. Riley and Rich Wilson.

Following the nomination of a trustee, the Republicans living outside the city of Rushville and in Rushville township will select delegates to the county convention by precincts. In the evening, the Republicans of the city will meet by wards and select delegations for the county convention. Notice of meeting places throughout the county appears on page three of this publication.

Every Republican who has the interest of his party at heart should turn out to this meeting in his respective community, and any Republican who has not the interest of his party at heart is not a Republican.

ENGINEER DID NOT SEE DR. DILLON

Man at the Throttle Crashed into Auto Without Sighting Unfortunate Victim

Coroner Coleman heard the testimony of the engineer and firemen today who were on the engine at the time that Dr. O. P. Dillon met his untimely death at the Main street crossing Sunday morning.

There are few people who are aware of the fact that there were two engineers on the engine at the time of the accident, but both Engineers Dooley and Sullivan were in the cab, together with Fireman Finnigan.

Engineer Sullivan, who was off duty and returning home, was on the left side of the cab and was the only one who saw the doctor when the engine hurled him into eternity. He testified before the coroner that he first saw the automobile when in about forty feet of it.

Each of the railroad employes testified that the train was moving from twelve to fourteen miles an hour, when the accident occurred. Claim Agent McGuire of the O. H. & D. accompanied the men here today.

HEADQUARTERS MOVED IN A LEATHER GRIP

Earnest B. Thomas, secretary to Congressman Watson, moved the local headquarters to Indianapolis in a grip today and will do the work on the firing line from the Capitol City.

RAID DRUG STORE

Officers at Danville Bring to Issue New Phase of Blind Tiger Law.

LIQUORS CONFISCATED

Only Evidence That Liquor Had Been Drunk on Premises Was the Presence of Glasses.

Druggist Who Conducted Store Without a Pharmacist Is Held Under Bond.

Danville, Ind., Feb. 12.—On a warrant sworn out by James L. Leak and Ora Leak, the drug store of George Hyland at Lizton was searched by Constable Oliver Wilhoite and Marshal William Saunders of Danville. A quantity of liquor and wines in jugs and bottles was confiscated. A number of glasses, such as are used for drinking liquor, were also taken. No sign of any beer was discovered, and there was no direct evidence that any liquor had been drunk on the premises, other than the presence of the glasses.

This is one phase of the "blind tiger" law which has not yet been construed, and it will be up to Judge Clark to interpret the law. Hyland is the man who gave notice some months ago that he would apply for a license to open a saloon, but the blanket remonstrance was so powerful against him that he did not make application. He then purchased the drug store of Lee Trotter, and has since been conducting the store without a registered pharmacist. He gave cash bond of $150 to appear for preliminary hearing Feb. 14.

SETTLED WITH THE COUNTY

Bondsmen of Two Former Treasurers Make Good Deficiencies.

Mt. Vernon, Ind., Feb. 12.—The bondsmen of Henry Fisher, former county treasurer of St. Phillips, found to be short $8,890 at the expiration of his term of office, have paid into the county treasury principal and interest, a total of $11,083.40, the claim dating back to 1904. Mr. Fisher claims that he left the office square in his accounts, but that he was not credited with money paid over to his successor. The administrator of the estate of Frederick Morlock, who succeeded Fisher, as county treasurer, has also paid into the county treasury $8,897.95. Morlock died in office and was short in his accounts. There is still a balance to be met by the bondsmen. It is alleged that Morlock invested public funds in real estate and made loans to friends on note security. All of his farm land and city property has been sold to meet the claim.

Settling With Depositors. Logansport, Ind., Feb. 12.—Judge John S. Lairy has ordered Willard Elliott, receiver of the defunct Baldwin-Dague banks at Ambia and Fowler, to make a 10 per cent dividend to depositors. A similar order was made by Judge Hanley of Rensselaer, regarding the defunct Baldwin-Dague bank at Goodland. As the result of a conference with the receivers all the depositors who have $10 deposits or less in the banks will immediately be paid in full. By this plan about 450 accounts will be closed out.

Three Licenses Revoked. Winamac, Ind., Feb. 12.—For the first time in its history Pulaski county is "dry," and it will remain "dry" for nearly two years so far as legitimate sales of intoxication is concerned. The remaining three saloons in the county at Winamac, Star City and Dunham have been closed by Judge John C. Nye revoking their licenses.

Fierce Local Fight. Valparaiso, Ind., Feb. 12.—The saloon men and the temperance forces are engaged in a fierce fight in this city. Both sides have an army of people canvassing for signatures, and the breweries are backing the saloon men with funds. Business men are threatened with boycott if they sign remonstrances against the liquor traffic.

Cracked the Second Time. Goshen, Ind., Feb. 12.—Robbers dynamited the safe in the Wakarusa postoffice, getting 20 cents in money and $30 in postage stamps. There is no clue to the identity of the burglars. Wakarusa is a small town on the Wabash railway, ten miles east of this city. The same safe was wrecked by burglars last fall.

Switchman Killed by Cars. Hammond, Ind., Feb. 12.—Michael Hafner, switchman, employed on the Indiana Harbor railway, was caught by an Erie freight train while returning to his home, and instantly killed. He attempted to cross the track by climbing between the cars, and he was thrown on the rail by a violent jerk.

Slashed Over a Pool Game. Evansville, Ind., Feb. 12.—In an argument over a pool game John Mooney, twenty-eight years old, was stabbed by a companion near the heart. He will probably die. A warrant was sworn out for the arrest of Wesley Kell, the alleged assailant of Mooney.

BONI MUST PAY

Prince Hell Gets 20 Cents Damages for His Cousin's Attack.

Paris, Feb. 12.—Count Boni de Castellane, the divorced husband of Anna Gould of New York, was found guilty by the correctional court of criminal assault and battery on Prince Helie de Sagan, his cousin, and fined $20. A verdict of 20 cents damages was returned for the prince.

The encounter between Count Boni and the prince, which resulted in the prince preferring charges against his cousin, occurred Jan. 2. Words were exchanged and then the two men came to blows, and Count Boni swore at his cousin and spat in his face. The prince took the matter to court and made charges against Count Boni and his brother, Count Jean. The charge against Count Jean was dismissed.

The cause of the fight is said to have been because Prince Helie was paying attention to Madame Gould, and this is supposed to have provoked Count Boni to the assault.

MUST GO TO JAIL

Officers of Printers' Union Violated Court's Injunction.

New York, Feb. 12.—Patrick H. McCormick, president of the local typographical union, known as "Big Six," and George W. Jackson and Vincent J. Costello, union organizers, have been fined $250 each and sentenced to twenty days' imprisonment for disobedience of an injunction obtained by the Typothetae of New York in 1906. Thomas Bennett and William S. Anderson were fined $100 on the same charge. Sentence was imposed by Justice Bischoff in the supreme court.

Prompt Action Prevented Panic. Cincinnati, Feb. 12.—A loss of nearly $90,000 was incurred, one fireman probably fatally injured, and a dangerous panic narrowly averted in a fire in the five-story building at 217 West Fourth street yesterday afternoon. The building was occupied by several concerns, the heaviest losers being two wholesale millinery establishments. Several hundred girl employees were in the building and for a time a panic threatened, but prompt action prevented it.

Worked His Way to the Top. New York, Feb. 12.—James D. Layne, vice president of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis railroad, died at 1:30 o'clock this morning at his home in this city. Mr. Layne was one of the best known railroad men in this country, having started as a rodman on the Ohio & Pennsylvania railroad and worked his way to the top.

To Raise the Pay of Soldiers. Washington, Feb. 12.—It has been decided by the house committee on military affairs to incorporate in the army appropriation bill provision for an increase of pay for enlisted men. The rate of increase has not yet been determined, nor has the committee yet decided to recommend increase of pay for officers.

The Need of Common Sense. I had a really scientific man to see me the other day, and in the course of our investigation of a point we had in common it was necessary to wash out a bottle. The bottle was empty. It was a round, wabby vessel, and he had to hold it under the water a long time so that it might get full enough of water to hold it down. I asked him why he did not fill it with water first, and he laughed and said he did not think of it. And that bears out my contention that it is not because a man is as "clever as paint" that he therefore grasps "the common sense of common things."—G. H. R. Dabbs in Fry's Magazine.

Why Currants Are Nutritious. The reason why currants are so remarkably nutritious is that they consist to a very large degree of saccharin in its most easily digestible form—that of grape sugar. The piquant flavor of the currant, which adds so much to its pleasantness as a food, is deriving from the valuable percentage of tartaric acid which the berry contains. Potash is also present in the form of cream of tartar and is undoubtedly of dietetic value.—Ladies' Pictorial.

No Excitement. "Here," said the dramatist, "we have a husband who loves his wife and a wife who loves her husband." "Well?" "How am I to construct a drama from such material?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

REACHED CLIMAX

Some New and Interesting Evidence in the Pennsylvania Capitol Graft Case.

"HAD TO PUT UP A BIG WAD"

This Is What Young Lewis Testified—Regarding Sanderson's Need For Putting In Enormous Bills.

That This "Wad" Was Put Up For "Other People" Creates Surmise as to Latters' Identity.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 12.—The climax in the state capitol conspiracy trial was reached yesterday afternoon just before the commonwealth closed, when Stanford B. Lewis, assistant to Architect Joseph M. Huston declared on the witness stand that Contractor John H. Sanderson, one of the defendants, complained that he did not want to cut down his bills because he "had to put up a big wad for other people."

Lewis also testified that the letter which he produced Monday with the explanation that it was responsible for his being indicted for conspiracy, had been written and brought to him by former Auditor General Snyder, a defendant in the present case, for his signature, in which Lewis was made to say he had certified to a bill for $187,735.20 paid to the Pennsylvania Construction company for metallic filing cases, which he had found correct.

Lewis's testimony followed the introduction of documentary evidence to show that thousands of dollars were paid to Sanderson for capitol furnishings months before their delivery, despite of the fact that certificates of receipt in good condition were required by law before bills could be approved. The testimony of Lewis was direct and unqualified and was not attacked by the defense.

When the trial was resumed today the defense moved that the court direct the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal on the ground that the commonwealth has not made out a case. Should the court overrule this motion, the defense will outline its side to the jury. A large number of witnesses have been subpoenaed by the defense, but it is doubtful if the case will reach the jury before the middle of next week.

MAY PAY IT BACK.

People of the South May Profit Millions by This Bill.

Washington, Feb. 12.—About $10,000,000 may be secured from the government by people of the South if a bill reported unanimously by the house committee on war claims becomes a law. The bill gives to the court of claims jurisdiction of the claims for captured and abandoned property which was sold during the civil war and the proceeds turned into the United States treasury.

During that war the government authorized the seizure of abandoned property, to be sold and the net proceeds placed in the United States treasury. There was a provision that if anyone should bring suit within two years after the close of the war and prove that the property sold belonged to him, the money received for it should be paid over, but to do this the citizen bringing the suit had to prove loyalty to the Union. This disqualified most Southerners until the amnesty proclamation was declared in 1866, which came too late to take the claims to court, the two years' grace having expired. The object of this bill is to enable the original owners of the confiscated property to get the money it brought when sold.

Indictments Piling Up.

New York, Feb. 12.—The federal grand jury, which is investigating the affairs of certain national banks, has voted four indictments. Three of these indictments, it was authoritatively stated, make charges against Charles W. Morse and a former official of the National Bank of North America for over-certification and misapplication of funds. Mr. Morse, who is due to arrive here on the steamer Etruria from Liverpool next Saturday, was indicted Monday by the New York county grand jury, which is also inquiring into the recent financial transactions among the banks of this city.

Slain by Unwelcome Lover.

Phoenixville, Pa., Feb. 12.—Norma Tholan, aged fifteen years, daughter of Hiram Tholan of West Pikeland township, was shot and killed near her home by John Miller, a young farmhand, who afterward shot himself in an effort to end his life. Miller had been employed by the girl's father, who discharged him because of his unwelcome attentions to the girl.

A Boy and a Gun.

Lebanon, Ind., Feb. 12.—At the home of her father, Quincy Ford, near Whitestown, this county, Flossie Ford, six years old, found a single-barrel pistol in an old trunk, which proved to be loaded, and while playing with the weapon it was accidentally discharged, the bullet striking her three-year-old brother in the head and killing him instantly.

Severe Attack Cured by Father John's Medicine

It is a splendid remedy," says Miss McCormick. Cures grip and all throat and lung troubles and is a grand body builder. F. E. Wolcott, Rushville, Ind.

Pepper in Olden Times.

During the middle ages in Europe pepper was the most esteemed and important of all the spices. Genoa, Venice and other commercial cities of central Europe were indebted to their traffic in pepper for a large part of their wealth. Its importance as a means of promoting commercial activity and civilization during the middle ages can hardly be overrated. Tribute was levied in pepper, and donations were made in this spice, which was frequently also used as a medium of exchange in place of money. When the imperial city of Rome was besieged by Alaric, the king of the Goths, in 408 A. D., the ransom demanded included 5,000 pounds of gold, 30,000 pounds of silver and 3,000 pounds of pepper, illustrating the importance of this spice at that time.

For Poetical Reasons.

"Perchance," called the amiable widow, "come here!" The little lapdog trotted meekly up. "Surely that is a strange name for a dog!" exclaimed the gentleman visitor. "What made you name him Perchance?" "I am so fond of poetry!" explained the lady lucidly. "Madam, forgive me, but I fail to see the applicability." "Why, silly man," exclaimed the merry widow, "I named it after Byron's dog! Don't you remember where he says, 'Perchance my dog will howl?'"

What He Knew.

Master—If your friend were to borrow 12 shillings from you, agreeing to pay 1 shilling a month, how much would he owe at the end of the year? Pupil—Twelve shillings. "You don't know the elements of arithmetic." "But I know my friend."—London Scraps.

I know that my home treatment is safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or White Discharge, Ulceration, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Tumors, or Growths; also pain in head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness, kidney, and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex. I want to send you a complete ten day's treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that if will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you wish to continue, it will cost you only about 12 cents a week or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation. Just send me your name and address, tell me how you suffer if you wish, and I will send you the treatment for your case, entirely free in plain wrapper, by return mail. I will also send you free of cost, my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISER" with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Republican "Want ads" Bring Results

THIS WILL START YOU TO THINKING

In the recent advertisement contest of The Daily Republican one subscriber had this to say of the "Want Ad Column."

"My opinion is that the best ad in your paper is the 'Want Ad Column' for through them you can buy what you want, sell what you don't want and find what you lose and also lose what you find, providing you advertise it in the Republican, and rent out what you don't want. It is to be depended on for it is always there, costs less, sells more than all the other ads combined. In fact, fills the bill complete, that has been our experience with the 'Want Ad Column.'"

RUSHVILLE, INDIANA, FEBRUARY 12, 1908

The meeting of the Indiana Lincoln League is being held in Wabash today and tomorrow. As this is campaign year, the meeting is, no doubt, a lively one and the candidates for State offices will be in evidence and urge their respective claims.

In the Republican primary of Wayne county yesterday, Rev. J. O. Campbell, one of three candidates for Congress from the Sixth district, won the race by 122 votes. Wayne county will now come to the Congressional convention with a solid delegation for Rev. Campbell.

The trip of United States battleships around South America will be beneficial in several ways. The people of the South American republics will get some idea of the sea power of the United States, and the people of the United States will learn something about the South American people—that they are not all "wild and woolly."

Today is the ninety-ninth anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth. The event has been made the occasion of a legal holiday in thirteen States and is being observed generally throughout in assemblages whereat addresses commemorative of his life and public services are delivered by eminent orators. Vice President Fairbanks spoke at Washington.

The late financial flurry had an awful shrinking effect on values. For instance, a few months ago, O. W. Morse, late trust magnate and high financier, was rated at $30,000,000, but after going over his visible assets with a fine comb, court officials have been only able to find $105 in real money. Mr. Morse is sojourning in Europe.

The Democratic national committee announces that there will be no excessive charges for hotel or other accommodations in Denver next summer when the convention meets. Still, it will not be advisable for visitors to go on short allowances. Opinions may differ as to what constitutes excessive charges, and Denverites who are putting up that $100,000 bonus are not doing it for their health.

No sensible man decries wealth. It is no crime to be rich, provided the riches were gained honorably, even as there is no merit in being poor when it is possible to honorably avoid it. Most of us would be better off if we could and the wish is laudable. That which is to be condemned is the dishonest and unscrupulous way by which some people secure their wealth, and it is a danger most of us have to guard against.

Secretary of the Interior Garfield in his annual report just published, covering the year ending June 30th last, states that during the twelve months the loss to the pension list was 49,634, of which 45,768 were caused by death. The net reduction of the roll for the year was 18,600, leaving the total at the date named 967,371. Less than 6000 pensioners represent the wars previous to 1846, and only 10,699 remain of the Mexican war veterans. The pensioned soldiers of the Civil war numbered 528,099, and the total henceforth must rapidly grow less. There are 256,168 pensioned widows. Soldiers of the Spanish war draw 19,031 pensions, and the pensioned widows attributable to that conflict are 1100.

CURRENT COMMENT

The Hand Behind King Carlos.

Shortly before the assassination of Carlos, king of Portugal, one Joao Chagas, leader of an ultra revolutionary wing of the so called Radical party of the kingdom, was cast into jail as a conspirator "against the government." According to Chagas' own story, he did not conspire against the government, but against "Dictator" Franco, the man whom contradictory views now class as the tool of the late king and again as the king's "boss." Chagas says that Franco was the king's tool. After the tragedy Queen Amelle insisted that Franco step down and out in the interests of peace and let the new king direct his own policy. In fact, the queen is credited with having made a most heroic fight in the council of state for the elimination of Franco from the government circle. But, tool or master, Franco is a historic figure in the tragedy enacted before our eyes. To quote from a pen picture of the "dictator" made by Chagas:

The psychology of Joao Franco is by no means complex. He is a sly rogue, of a headlong and masterful nature. But he is a tiger who assumes the playfulness of the cat. His idiosyncrasy has nothing in it that is in harmony either with our era or our race. He is a type essentially reproducing the old South American dictators who were half statesman, half brigand, like Lopez of Paraguay. He is not without a certain intelligence and a certain frankness that lends to his words the appearance of a high sense of honor and loyalty. This quality of specious candor has opened to him a path to power and has enabled him to keep his hold upon it. These gifts have led every one who co-operates with him to acknowledge the overwhelming power of his personality.

Furthermore, the writer says that Franco's boasted economies in government are false; that he was the most corrupt minister in the history of Portugal; that he bought support by lavish distribution of favors in the shape of peerages, state offices, positions in the state bank and other fat sinecures. In fact, this critic says that he began to corrupt even King Carlos himself, the monarch who in the same article is accused of using Franco as a tool. Chagas gave one anecdote to show what a desperate adventurer King Carlos was harboring near the throne. He says that Franco was wont to declare that if he ever reached the summit of power he would never give up until he was thrown out of the window. He first narrowly escaped the fate of his king and prince and then was virtually pushed from power as being a tyrant and therefore a menace to the welfare of Portugal.

Making the World Smaller.

Whatever our railroads may do in the matter of limiting enterprises of construction the next few years, it seems evident that this era is not to lose soon its distinction as one of colossal railway projects. Russia is preparing to put nearly $100,000,000 into the Siberian line, making the entire system a double track route. What will mean for the commercial and traveling public an extension of this line to Calcutta is the proposed Indo-European railway, uniting Russia with India and placing Paris within twelve days' journey of Calcutta. Starting from a landing on the English channel, the all rail route would be via Paris, Warsaw, Moscow, Baku, in Russia; Ashkabad, in Transcaspia; Tejed, in Persia, and Quetta, in Baluchistan. It is expected that the through fare on this line will be $200.

Then there is the German project of a road from the Mediterranean to the Persian gulf, which would be regarded as a wonder in an age of ordinary exploits of railway building. New York capital is doubling up the railway mileage of the Philippines rapidly, and right at home we have on foot a project to bring into existence the first through line from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the Gould line, which will unite several Atlantic ports by rail with San Francisco. When local enterprise is dull, the greater projects become more feasible because of release of labor and materials. Very shortly a spin from the jumping off points of the west and the east will be simply a holiday affair.

Republican Want-Ads bring results.

The Real Breeders of Anarchy.

By RICHARD T. CRANE, Manufacturer, Chicago.

MAINTAIN that $5,000,000 made HONESTLY is worth more to a man than $100,000,000 made by trickery or SCHEMES THAT WILL NOT BEAR THE LIGHT.

In these days we hear a great deal about anarchists and what terrible people they are. As a matter of fact, I imagine that the conditions in Paris at the time preceding the commune DID NOT DIFFER WIDELY FROM THE CONDITIONS EXISTING WITH US TODAY.

AND THE MEN OF VAST WEALTH DISHONESTLY ACQUIRED ARE, IN MY OPINION, THE REAL BREEDERS OF ANARCHY, AND YET THEY WILL PUT ON AN INNOCENT FACE AND SAY: "WE CANNOT UNDERSTAND WHY THERE ARE ANARCHISTS HERE. WE HAVE STOLEN ONLY A HUNDRED MILLIONS, AND WE SEE NO CAUSE FOR PROTEST AND DISSATISFACTION ON THE PART OF ANY ONE."

Recent events, however, have shown us that many of those who felt so SECURE ON THE PINNACLE OF THEIR PILED UP ILL GOTTEN WEALTH have been suddenly dashed down to disgrace, imprisonment and even to suicide as a result of having failed to realize all through their business careers that honesty is indeed the best policy.

In my opinion we shall never have a clear business atmosphere in this country until we TREAT ALL RASCALS ALIKE, big or little, and whether they live on Fifth avenue or Riverside drive or in the hovels. How strange it is that those sharp fellows who have the ability to do so many things that are crooked do not turn their brains in directions that are honest.

Old Railroad Test.

People along the eastern division of the Boston and Maine railroad between Boston and Portsmouth have been treated to a peculiar sight for the last few days as they observed a man riding on the engine of train No. 29. Standing on a little platform surrounded by a sheet of canvas to break the wind, he rode near the smokestack back and forth to Portsmouth every day. The company has been making a test of a smoke burning apparatus and trying to find out just how much water and coal are consumed for each mile of the trip and also recording the speed of the engine made on varying steam pressure. In the cab have been two other men, known as inspectors, taking a record of the work done by the fireman in handling the fire of the locomotive during round trips.

New Chinese Army.

The Rev. Ng Poon Chow, a Chinese editor, who addressed the inter-denominational missionary conference in Calvary church at San Francisco the other night, aroused the risibilities of his audience by a well meant comment on the new army which his country is now developing.

"China," said the learned oriental, "is raising a standing army of 1,000,000 men."

After a pause, in which he allowed his auditors to grasp the extent of his statement, he added with an inimitable Mongolian lisp:

"China has never had a standing army. It has always been either a running army or a sitting army."

The Ghost Spy.

[Original.]

"General, we bring you a spy. While at work on the breach the enemy made yesterday we discovered this man or boy, whichever he may be, at times working with us, at times looking about him at the approaches, the mote, the walls, as if searching for a weak point. He did not remove his armor, as we did, for freedom to work and kept his visor closed. Suspecting him, we seized him."

"Ah, ha!" exclaimed the general. "Take him to the parapet and hang him in view of the prince who sent him."

A gibbet was erected, a ladder placed in position and the prisoner taken on to the parapet for hanging. He begged that he might offer his last adoration to his God in his own way, and when permission was given him, facing to the west, where the sun was sinking, he bowed low three times.

"He's worse than a heathen," cried the captain of the execution party. "He worships fire. Send him to hell, where he belongs."

The youth was forced to climb the ladder, the noose was put about his neck, and the ladder was kicked away. There were a few jerks and all was quiet.

The night was dark. The sentry who guarded that part of the parapet where the spy hung was obliged to pass and repass the ghoulish object on his beat. At first he would not look at it. Then in passing he turned his eyes toward it, as though compelled by a dread fascination. There was nothing of the body to be seen within the armor except a lock of hair that hung below the helmet.

"It doth amaze me," muttered the sentry, "how long these cavaliers wear their locks. Mayhap it serves for a rope whereby Satan lowers them into the burning lake."

Encouraged by the thought, he gave the corpse a poke with his pike. As it swung back toward him he thought he heard a low moan. Daring to the end of his beat, he hid behind a stone projection and could not induce himself to again walk past the body. While he stood shivering in his corner a wind sprang up, swaying the dreaded object and occasionally knocking the steel armor against the gibbet. To shut out the sound he put his fingers in his ears.

When he heard the relief coming he took up his pike and resumed his beat. There was the ghostly thing still swaying in the wind. The sentry was relieved, and his successor, a braver man, marched to and fro on his beat without fear. Once when passing it occurred to him to strike it with his pike. What was his surprise to hear it emit a hollow sound. He struck it again, with the same result. Then he put a hand under one foot and lifted it without any more exertion than would be required to lift an empty suit of armor.

"Captain of the guard," he cried, "the devil has flown away with the spy's body!"

The captain came, examined the armor and stood aghast. Then he reported the fact to the general. The general came, saw and was conquered. They were superstitious in those days, and he believed that the spy was a supernatural being who had come to find out how best the stronghold could be taken. The ghost had seen that but a handful of men defended it. Besides, it had seen a circuitous path that led to the rear, over which a force might come and fire into the works from a greater height. The general went trembling back to his quarters.

The next morning he saw the forces of the enemy drawn up prepared to climb the heights and a detachment moving toward the path leading to his rear. He ordered a white flag displayed on the battlements.

Later a party carrying a litter came up the declivity. In the litter was a girl, pale and languid. A young knight who accompanied her stated that she had been sent to receive the surrender. The general gave it, saying:

"I can fight men, but not spirits. Yesterday a mysterious stranger was observed spying on our works. He had neither the face of man nor woman, but a creature betwixt the two. We hanged him on the parapet that the prince might be deferred from sending others. In the night that which seemed to be a body vanished."

A smile came upon the girl's wan face. "General," she said, "I was this supernatural creature. I volunteered to come and get the information required for your defeat. Before the execution I bowed thrice to the west, which, by a code agreed upon, told the prince your weakness and the best route of procedure. When I was hanged my hair was loose under my helmet and protected my throat from the noose, which, too, caught in a projection of my armor. I remained unconscious till"— She looked at her companion. He said:

"Seeing the body of my affianced bride hanging on the parapet, I resolved to secure it or die. A party brought ladders, by which I crossed the moat and by another climbed the battlement. As I was about to cut the body down I heard a moan. I loosened the noose, took the burden to the other side of the moat and sent a man back with the armor to hang it up, thinking to conceal the theft till we could take counsel. Our brave girl was brought back to consciousness, and the prince gave her the right to receive your surrender."

The girl who had achieved this great work and nerved herself to complete it as soon as the story was told faintly. It is one thing to do the work of a spy, another to be hanged.

In Memory of GUY FLOYD

Another precious darling,
 Has gone to Him on high,
 To dwell in that celestial land;
 To that home beyond the sky.

Two lily white hands are folded
 On his bosom white
 No more on this earth they'll toil,
 But rest in honest delight.

There was a place in heaven
 That was not quite complete
 And God took our darling
 To fill the vacant seat.

How sad it was to give him up;
 One that we all loved so well
 Yet we hope to meet him again,
 And there forever dwell.

We kindly thank our friends and neighbors for their kind assistance through the sickness and death of our brother, Guy Floyd.

THE SENSIBLE COUGH CURE

There are kinds of cough remedies which are as bad as the coughs they are intended to cure. They stop the coughs sometimes, but they do it by doing just what a cough cure should not do and that is to dry up the secretions and to strangle the cough by means of opiates. "Goodbye!" she said, walking to him, with outstretched hand. "It's all in a lifetime, Steve, and that's too short for a good clean friendship like ours to die in. I don't think I'd better come again. Look me up for a gallop when you're fit, and you might drop me a line to say how you're getting on. Is it all right, Stephen?"

"All right," he said hoarsely.

out, leaving him haggard, motionless.

Plank found him there an hour later fumbling among the papers and at first feared that he read in Seward's drawn and sullen face a premonition of the ever dreaded symptoms.

"Quarrier has telephoned asking for a conference at last," he said abruptly, sitting down beside Seward.

"Well," inquired Seward, "how do you interpret that—favorably?"

"I am inclined to think he is a bit uneasy," said Plank cautiously. "Harrington made a secret trip to Albany last week. It looks to me as though there were going to be a ghost of a chance for an investigation. Suppose I meet Quarrier?"

"All right. Did he suggest a date?"

"At 4 this afternoon. I think," observed Plank, laying his half consumed cigar on the silver tray, "that I'd better go downtown and see what our preglacial friend Quarrier wants. Seward, he is a bad man and crafty—every inch of him."

"Oh, come, now! Only characters in fiction have no saving qualities. You never heard of anybody in real life being entirely bad."

"No, I didn't, and Quarrier isn't. For example, he is kind to valuable animals—I mean his own."

"Good to animals! The bad man's invariable characteristic!" laughed Seward. "I'm fond to 'em too. What else is he good to?"

"Everybody knows that he hasn't a poor relation left—not one. He is loyal to them in a rare way. He filled one subsidiary company full of them. It is known downtown as the 'Home For Destitute Nephews.'"

"Seriously, Plank, the man must have something good in him."

"Because of your theory?"

"Yes. I believe that nobody is entirely bad. So do the great masters of fiction."

Plank said gravely: "He is a good son to his father. That is perfectly true—kind, considerate, dutiful, loyal. The financial world is perfectly aware that Stanley Quarrier is today the most unscrupulous old scoundrel who ever crushed a refinery or debauched a railroad, and his son no more believes it than he credits the scandalous history of the Red Woman of Wall street."

Seward had never before seen Plank aroused, and he said so, smiling.

"That is true," said Plank earnestly. "I waste little temper over my likes and dislikes. But what I know and what I legitimately infer concerning the younger Quarrier is enough to rouse any man's anger. I won't tell you what I know. I can't. It has nothing to do with his financial methods, nothing to do with his business. But it is bad—bad all through! The blow his father struck at the integrity of the bench the son strikes at the very keystone of all social safeguard. I must go now. Goodbye. Take care of that ankle. Any books I can send you—anything you want? No? All right. And don't worry over Amalgamated Electric, for I really believe we are beginning to frighten them badly."

It was exactly 4 o'clock when Plank was ushered into Quarrier's private suite in the great marble Algonquin Loan and Trust building, the upper stories of which were all golden in the sun against a sky of sapphire.

Quarrier was alone, gloved and hatted, as though on the point of leaving. He showed a slight surprise at seeing Plank, as if he had not been expecting him, and the manner of offering his hand subtly emphasized it as he came forward with a trace of inquiry in his greeting.

"You said 4 o'clock, I believe?" observed Plank bluntly.

"Ah, yes. It was about that—ah—matter—ah—I beg your pardon, can you recollect?"

"I don't know what it is you want. You requested this meeting," said Plank, yawning.

"Mr. Plank," Quarrier said, "there should be some way for us to come together. Have you considered it?"

"No, I haven't," replied Plank.

"I mean for you and me to try to understand each other."

"For us?" asked Plank, raising his blond eyebrows. "Do you mean Amalgamated Electric and Intercounty impersonally?"

"I mean for us personally. We are wasting opportunities. This whole matter is involving us in a tangle of litigation requiring our constant efforts, constant attention."

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Quarrier, but you take it too seriously. I have found in this affair nothing except a rather agreeable mental exhilaration."

"Mr. Plank, if you are not inclined to be serious?"

"I am," said Plank so savagely that Quarrier, startled, could not doubt him. "I like this sort of thing, Mr. Quarrier. Anything that is hard to overcome I like to overcome. The pleasure in life to me is to win out. I am fighting you with the greatest possible satisfaction to myself."

"Perhaps you see victory ahead," said Quarrier calmly.

"I do, Mr. Quarrier, I do, but not in the manner you fear I may hope for it."

Quarrier said without emotion, "I repeat that it would be easy for you and me to merge our differences on a basis absolutely satisfactory to you and to me—and to Harrington."

"You are mistaken," said Plank, rising. "Good afternoon."

Quarrier rose too. "You decline to discuss the matter?" he asked.

"It has been discussed sufficiently."

"Then why did you come here?"

"To see for myself how afraid of me you really are," said Plank. "Now I know, and so do you. Mr. Quarrier, I want to tell you something. Never before in business differences has private indignation against any individual interfered or modified my course of action. It does now, but it does not dictate my policy toward you; it merely, as I say, modifies it. I am perfectly aware of what I am doing, what social disaster I am inviting by this attitude toward you personally, what financial destruction I am courting in arousing the wrath of the Algonquin Trust company and of the powerful interests entrenched behind Intercounty Electric. I know what the lobby is; I know what judge cannot be counted on; I know my peril and my chances, every one, and I take them—every one. For it is a good fight, Mr. Quarrier. It will be talked of for years to come wondering, not because of your effrontery, not because of my obstinacy, but because such monstrous immorality could ever have existed in this land of ours. Your name, Harrington's, mine, will have become utterly forgotten long before the horror of these present conditions shall cease to be remembered."

He stretched out one ponderous arm, pointing full between Quarrier's unwinking eyes.

"Take your fighting chance—it is the cleanest thing you ever touched—and use it cleanly, or there'll be no mercy shown you when your time comes. Let the courts alone. Do you hear me? Let the legislature alone. Keep your manured hands off the ermine. And tell Harrington to shove his own cold, splay fingers into his own pocket for a change. They'll be warmer than his feet by this time next year."

For a moment he towered there—powerful, bulky, menacing.

—then his arm dropped heavily, the old stolid expression came back into his face, leaving it calm, boyne, almost stupid again. And he turned, moving slowly toward the door, holding his hat carefully in his gloved hand.

Stepping out of the elevator on the ground floor, he encountered Mortimer and halted instinctively. He had not seen Mortimer for weeks; neither had Leila, and now he looked at him inquiringly, disturbed at his battered and bloodshot appearance.

"Oh," said Mortimer, "you down here?"

"Have you been out of town?" asked Plank cautiously.

Mortimer nodded and started to pass on toward the bronze cage of the elevator, but something seemed to occur to him suddenly. He checked his pace, turned and waddled after Plank, rejoining him on the marble steps of the rotunda.

"Look here," he said, "I promised you something once, didn't I?"

"Did you?" said Plank, with his bland, expressionless stare of an overgrown baby.

"Oh, cut that out! You know I did, and when I say a thing I make good. D'ye see?"

"I don't see," said Plank, "what you are talking about."

"I'm talking about what I said I'd do for you. Haven't I made good? Haven't I put you into everything I said I would? Don't you go everywhere? Don't people ask you everywhere?"

"Yes, in a way," said Plank wearily. "I am very grateful. I always will be. Can I do anything for you, Leroy?"

Mortimer had attended a "killing" at Desmond's and, as usual, had provided the piece de resistance for his soft voiced host. All he wanted was a temporary deposit to tide over matters. He had never approached Plank in vain, and he did not do so now, for Plank had a pocket check book and a stylus.

"It's little to ask, isn't it?" he muttered resentfully. "That will only square matters with Desmond. It doesn't leave me anything to go on with." And he pocketed his check with a scowl.

Plank was discreetly silent.

"And that is not what I chased you for, either," continued Mortimer. "Beverly, old boy, I've got a certain mealy faced hypocrite where any decent man would like to have him—by the scruff of his neck. He's fit only to kick, and I'm going to kick him good and plenty, and in the process he's going to let go of several things. One of 'em's yours."

Plank looked at him.

"I told you once that I'd let you know when to step up and say 'Good evening,' didn't I?"

Plank continued to stare.

"Didn't I?" repeated Mortimer peevishly, beginning to lose countenance.

"I don't understand you," said Plank, "and I don't think I want to understand you."

"What do you mean?" demanded Mortimer thickly. "Don't you want to marry that girl?" But he shrank dismayed under the slow blaze that lighted Plank's blue eyes.

"All right," he stammered, struggling to his fat legs and instinctively backing away. "I thought you meant business. I—what the devil do I care who you marry! It's the last time I try to do anything for you or for anybody else!"

Plank gazed at him for a moment. The anger in his face died out.

"I am not ungrateful," he said. "You may say almost anything except that, Leroy. I am not disloyal, no matter what else I may be. But you have made a bad mistake. So let us forget the matter."

But Mortimer, keenly appreciative of the pleasures of being misunderstood, squeezed some moisture out of his distended eyes and sat down, a martyr to his emotions. "To think," he gulped, "that you of all men should turn on me like this!"

"I didn't mean to. Can't you understand, Leroy, that you hurt me?"

"Hurt nothing!" retorted Mortimer vindictively. "You've had sensation battered out of you by this time. I guess society has landed you a few while I was boosting you over the out-works. There's another lady, that's all."

"Let it go at that, then," said Plank, reddening. "And now let me ask you a question—where were you going when I met you?"

"What do you want to know for?" asked Mortimer sullenly.

"Why, I'll tell you, Leroy. If you have any idea of identifying yourself with Quarrier's people, of seeking him at this juncture with the expectation of investing any money in his schemes, you had better not do so."

"Investing?" sneered Mortimer. "Well, no, not exactly, having nothing to invest, thanks to my being swindled into joining his Amalgamated Electric gang. Don't worry. If there's any shaking down to be done I'll do it, my friend." And he rose and started toward the elevators.

"Wait," said Plank. "Why, man, you can't frighten Quarrier. What did you sell your holdings for? Why didn't you come to us—to me? What's the use of going to Quarrier now and scolding? You can't scare a man like that."

Mortimer fairly grinned in his face. "Your big mistake," he sneered, "is in undervaluing others. I want you to understand a few things, my friend, and one of them is that I'm not afraid of Quarrier, and another is I'm not afraid of you!"

"Leroy?"

"No, not afraid of you either!" repeated Mortimer, with an ugly stare. "You keep a civil tongue in your head after this—do you understand?—and we'll get on all right. If you don't, I've the means to make you!"

"Are you crazy?"

"Not a bit of it! Too sane for you and Leila to hoodwink!"

"You are crazy!" repeated Plank, aghast.

"Am I? You and Leila can take the matter into court if you want to—unless I do. And"—here he leaned forward, showing his teeth again—"the next time you kiss her close the door!"

Then he went away up the marble steps and entered an elevator, and Plank, grave and pale, went out into the street and entered his big touring car. But the drive up town and through the sunlit park gave him no pleasure, and he entered his great house with a heavy, lifeless step, head bent, as though counting every crevice in the stones under his lagging feet. For the first time in all his life he was afraid of a man.

Home For "Forty-niners."

Blanche Bates, the star of "The Girl of the Golden West," is agitating a project for the establishment of a home for needy "forty-niners." Miss Bates is an ardent student of the history of her native state and believes the work of development in California is directly due to the early gold seekers. In return for their efforts of a half century ago she believes those that require it should be rewarded to the extent of furnishing them a refuge in their old age. The actress is now in communication with the various congressional representatives from California with a view to learning how much she may depend upon them for aid in the movement.

BALL PLAYER'S HEADGEAR.

Jap Barbeau's Odd Device to Protect Batsmen From Wild Pitchers.

When Eddie Summers, the Indianapolis speedster, came within a hair's breadth of putting Jap Barbeau out of baseball forever late last fall, he unconsciously stimulated an inventive vein in the makeup of the dashing little Toledo shortstop, says a Milwaukee (Wis.) special dispatch to the Cleveland Leader. While the Jap does not believe that the terrific bump he received in the head will have any effect on his batting, he intends to take time by the forelock and be prepared with a patent headgear to wear if necessity requires.

The head bonnet was the result of an invention by Roger Bresnahan, the New York catcher, but Barbeau believes that the head decoration he has in mind will be a big improvement over that of the burly giant. The gear he intends to have made is nothing more or less than an aluminium helmet covered with a hair wig. To the uninitiated and even to many ball players this harness will appear ludicrous. It is far from such to Barbeau, who has already placed an order with a Milwaukee firm for the gear.

The bonnet will fit closely and will be so made that it can be worn throughout the game without any inconvenience to the player. It will cover the entire back part of the head, fitting close to the ears and forehead. The hair, Barbeau claims, will give the apparatus a natural appearance, which will make it difficult for the casual observer to detect its presence. The Jap has not decided what the color of his tresses will be, but we might suggest that he get a rich auburn or a peroxide blond effect.

Barbeau has not played in a game since knocked senseless by Summers' wild fling, and there is a possibility that he will not be able to bat at his usual gallop during the first month of the season. Several players have been ruined as ball tossers by being hit in the head, and many of the calamity howlers are predicting that the Toledo star will go the same route. Barbeau himself does not laugh at the idea, but looks at the matter in a serious light. He thinks that he will be able to work off any evil effect his injury may have had and gradually overcome the fear that naturally follows an accident of this nature. In case he cannot step up to the plate and meet the ball as squarely as last season he will don the headgear to help him along.

WHICH STORY DO YOU WANT?

The Daily Republican wishes to ascertain which of the following stories is desired for the next serial to be published after the present story, "The Fighting Chance," is finished. The story receiving the most requests will be printed next and the other stories in order of standing. Send us your preference by card, phone or personal call before February 17th. Following is a list of a few of the stories we can secure for publication in the Republican.

The Mystery

By Stewart Edward White and Samuel Hopkins Adams. To the worth of this story there are two substantial tributes—first, that it was run as a serial by the London Sphere, a publication noted for its discrimination in the selection of serials and which rarely uses an American story; second, that "The Mystery" was one of the "good sellers" of 1907. This is a story of mystery and adventure on new lines. The style is graphic and forceful as the "copy" of a skillful reporter of an important news event. The part of the hero, unfolds gradually until he stands revealed as the rarest combination of whimsical humor and cool courage ever presented, perhaps in fiction. The narrative, which conveys the impression of reality, not fiction, is swift and alluring, holding the interest of the reader as with hooks of steel.

His Courtship

By Helen R. Martin, author of "Tillie: A Mennonite Maid." In the main this story is a record of the adventures of a young Doctor of Philosophy, who conspires to play the humble role of hired hand at Mr. Morningstar's farm boarding house that he may have opportunity for serious and scholarly meditations and avoid the blandishments of fascinating young lady boarders. The resulting complications make a story as rich in humor, as provocative of laughter as any that has been written in recent years. The characters are as interesting as one's intimate friends.

The Plow Woman

By Eleanor Gates, author of "The Biography of a Prairie Girl." A story of the winning of the west; of the ways and wiles of the savage Sioux; of brave soldiers and daring frontiersmen; of a stubborn hate coming down from the civil war; of love tender, brave and true. He who reads shall know that a tale of Dakota of thirty years ago may kindle and inspire as much as any story of times remote; that the days of romance are near, not far off. The narrative begins quietly and rises steadily in interest to a climax as absorbing and inspiring as has been presented in any novel or drama, old or new.

Richard the Brazen

By Cyrus Townsend Brady, author of "The Southerner," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc., and Edward Peple, author of "A Broken Rosary," "The Prince Chap," etc. In "Richard the Brazen" we put before the reader a knight errant worthy of the best days of chivalry, though he is of the present, and we find him in the garb of a cowboy. The superb courage with which he rescues from certain death a young woman whom he had never before seen, and the reckless daring with which he risks his reputation in attempt to win this woman under an assumed name, will appeal strongly to every lover of romance and admirer of courage. How Richard prospered in his enterprise under difficulties which would discourage any but the most stout hearted we leave the reader to find out, and a most delightful pastime it will prove.

The King of Diamonds

By Louis Tracy, author of "The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," etc. Gripping the reader fast with its tale of the astounding transformation, in one day, of a ragged London waif into the possessor of incalculable wealth, this story by Louis Tracy measures up fully to the standard of this romancer's other popular tales. In the unfolding of the story he depicts not merely the change in the hero's material circumstances, but the interesting development of his character. The stirring adventures in which Philip Anson became embroiled by reason of his suddenly acquired riches, little ally sent to him from heaven, his loyalty to the girl friend of his childhood and his manly devotion with Mr. Tracy's well known skill.

Red Saunders

By Henry Wallace Phillips. This is the famous story of Red Saunders, big Red, tough Red of the plains and mines. We shall follow this expansive man through his days of toughness and sinfulness up to the great day of his life, the day that shall bring the metamorphosis of Red. This trumpeter will not give the story away by indicating how this transformation shall come about—whether through the remorse or repentance of Red, his conviction of sin, his fear of the damnation of the wicked, his yearning for the peace that passeth understanding, or whether it shall be the love of woman that shall bring this giant to his knees and make him as a little child. The trumpeter will only promise that this conversion of Red shall be one of the most interesting and delicious episodes in all fiction, which the reader will enjoy and doubtless remember through all the years of his life.

OHIO IS FOR TAFT

No Opposition Worth Mentioning Developed In Republican Primaries.

VOTING WAS ALL ONE WAY

Supreme Court Destroyed All Chances of Success by the Foraker Element in Cuyahoga County.

In the Majority of Counties the Selection of Delegates Was a Mere Formality.

Columbus, O., Feb. 12.—The net result of the Republican primaries held throughout Ohio Tuesday, for William H. Taft, was four delegates at large and twenty-two district delegates to the national convention in Chicago, and a list of delegates to the state convention to be held March 3, which will be unanimously in his favor. Hardin county held no primaries.

No opposition worth mentioning developed during the day. The supreme court destroyed all chances of success by the Foraker element in Cuyahoga county by declaring that the Taft county committee was the only valid organization of its kind in that county, and the selection of delegates there went by default, no ticket being placed in the field against the Taft candidates.

In Knox county the opposition to Taft had brought an "independent" ticket into the field, the independents, however, being all Foraker men. The Taft candidates won easily—the vote being about 4 to 1 in their favor. Actual voting for delegates to the state convention was carried on in but thirty-five out of the total of eighty-eight counties in the state, the Taft delegates in fifty-two counties having no opposition and their names were simply certified as having been elected.

The following statement was issued last night by Arthur I. Vorys, the manager of the Taft campaign: "Ohio is for Taft. The result at the primaries today completes the demonstration. Every county (except one with seven delegates), now has selected its delegates to the state convention. Every county has selected Taft delegates. The state convention will be unanimous for Taft, for every one of the 815 delegates is for and is instructed for Taft. This unanimity also demonstrates that every one of the forty-six delegates to the national convention will be for Taft."

ATTRACTED THE BANKERS
Debate on Currency Bill in Senate Followed With Interest.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Debate in the senate on the Aldrich currency bill was followed with interest by many bankers who occupied seats in the galleries. The discussion of the measure was directed briefly toward the provision for railroad bonds as a basis for emergency circulation, a wide difference of opinion being developed concerning the method that should be adopted in determining the valuation to give such bonds as well as opposition to the use of such security under any terms. The bill was finally read through and committee amendments were incorporated in the bill, it being understood that the entire bill is to be subject to amendment hereafter.

Interest in the proceedings of the house attached to a mild criticism of the president by Mr. Tawney, chairman of the committee on appropriations, for having, as Mr. Tawney charges, appointed the inland waterways commission without authority of law. The debate was on the urgent deficiency bill and grew out of a senate amendment to pay John R. Bankhead, now senator from Alabama, for his services on the commission. The right of the president to appoint such commissions was upheld by Messrs. Crumpacker of Indiana and Underwood of Alabama. The house, however, refused to accept the amendment.

In a vigorous speech Mr. Harrison of New York condemned Secretary of State Root for his manner of handling the negotiations with Russia regarding passports to Russian Hebrew citizens of the United States, while Mr. Loudon of Illinois with equal force defended Secretary Root, saying the negotiations would result satisfactorily to Jewish citizens wishing to visit Russia.

The Indian appropriation bill was discussed for some time and was amended in several important particulars.

Some Clerks Cut Off.
Washington, Feb. 12.—The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill reported to the house carries a total appropriation of $32,337,073, a reduction of $1,873,643 from the aggregate of the estimates submitted. Estimated expenses for payment of employees in the service of the senate are reduced in the bill from $100,000 to $75,000, twelve $1,800 clerks to senators who are not committee chairmen being cut off. A similar cut of $25,000 is made in the estimated expenses of the house. Numerous salary increases are provided for in the bill.

THEY LET HER OFF

Jury Declares Mrs. McDonald Innocent of Murder.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Dora McDonald, who has been on trial here since Jan. 20 on the charge of murdering Webster Guerin, was acquitted by a jury in the criminal court last night. The verdict was reached after six and a half hours' deliberation.

The defendant, who is the widow of Michael C. McDonald, formerly a political leader in Chicago, received the verdict without apparent emotion. During the trial she had frequently collapsed and on several occasions the case has been postponed in order that she might receive medical attention. Last night, however, she was the least moved of any of the persons concerned in the defense. Members of the jury took an oath before reporting their finding not to reveal the history of their deliberations. The first ballot, they said, stood eight to four for acquittal, but subsequent developments were carefully kept secret.

Webster S. Guerin was shot and killed in his studio in the Omaha building, LaSalle and VanBuren streets, Feb. 21, 1907. Mrs. McDonald was alone with him when the tragedy occurred and was immediately arrested and charged with the murder. The shock of the tragedy proved disastrous to McDonald, and he died Aug. 9, 1907, after an illness of several weeks. His fortune was left to the accused woman and his two sons, one the child of a former marriage. Special provision was made in his will for Mrs. McDonald's defense and the instrument was attacked in court by his former wife, Mrs. Mary McDonald, from whom he had obtained a divorce. The suit is still pending.

It developed at the trial just concluded that Guerin and Mrs. Dora McDonald had been more or less intimate for almost ten years, their relations having begun when Guerin was less than seventeen years old. The state asserted that Guerin had attempted to dissolve these relations and that the woman shot him in a jealous rage.

The defense attacked Guerin's character, asserting that he had systematically blackmailed Mrs. McDonald for years, and offered evidence tending to show that he had attacked her in his studio on the day of the tragedy. One of the dramatic incidents of the trial was the acting out of this alleged struggle by two physicians, who showed how Mrs. McDonald might have twisted the revolver in Guerin's hand until it pointed at his own breast and how the trigger might have been pulled during the struggle. The trial attracted unusually large crowds, and on several occasions the police and bailiffs had to unite forces to hold would-be spectators in check.

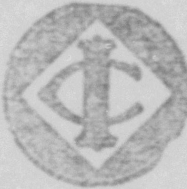

Mrs. Gould Escapes Death.
Monte Carlo, Feb. 12.—The death sentence against Mrs. Violet Gould, who with her husband, Vere St. Leger Gould, was convicted of the murder of Emma Levin here last summer, has been commuted to life imprisonment.

The French Marching On.
Paris, Feb. 12.—Telegraphic advices received from General D'Amade, the French commander in Morocco, state that he has occupied Kasbah Ouled Said without resistance and ravaged the surrounding country.

Moorish Bandits Grow Bold.
Tetuan, Feb. 12.—British, French, German and Spanish postal couriers while on their way to Tangier, thirty-two miles distant, have been robbed of all the correspondence written in Arabic that they carried.

WILD WEST FOR BOYS

Vast Country Playgrounds Planned For City Youngsters.

FIRST ONE TO BE IN MICHIGAN

John D. Rockefeller and His Son-in-law, Harold McCormick, Will Finance Captain Jack Crawford's Scheme to Make Boys Self Reliant. Poet Scout to Boss First Playground.

Great summer playgrounds in the country for city children is the latest philanthropy in which John D. Rockefeller intends to use part of his wealth, aided by his son-in-law, Harold McCormick of Chicago. Captain Jack Crawford, sometimes known as the "poet scout," made the statement recently while in New York. He ought to know, for he is to have direct charge of the first playground to be opened, a tract of wilderness in Michigan on Portage lake, about twelve miles from the town of Manistee.

The plan provides not only for a playground, but for a systematic supervision of the boys' summer play, which will be largely along the lines of hunting, trapping, woodcraft, swimming, military exercises, target practice and regular exercise in the old tricks of the former wild and woolly west.

Indians will be employed, and against them the boys will go on weekly expeditions. There will be stagecoaches for the boys to save from the attacks of bandits, the outlaws being other boys of the vacation crowd. There will be a typical old time frontier military post, where the lads will learn the life of the mounted service. Miniature deserts will be provided, so that the boys may learn another form of western life. In fact, everything will be provided to keep alive the old ability of the frontier days in the masculine American breast and to make the boys as capable as were their ancestors when called upon in an emergency. The "study period" will range from three to thirteen weeks.

Within the next year two play wilds, if not more, will be opened, the one in Michigan, which will be in operation next summer, and another on a large tract in New Mexico or southwestern Texas. The land in Michigan embraces almost 1,200 acres. Captain Crawford claims the conception of this idea as his own, though Rockefeller and McCormick money are to finance it in its full development. In speaking of it he said:

It suggested itself to me in a talk I had with George Gould on a steamer coming back from England nearly twelve years ago. Mr. Gould was lamenting that much in the way of outdoor sports of a healthy and spirit building character was almost impossible in those days, when the country was growing so populous. I asked him what he meant, and he said he wished there was some frontier left to which he could send his older boys, under suitable supervision, where they could learn something of real roughing it for a few weeks every year. "It makes better men of boys," he continued, "to learn something of the frontier life and of the things they must know in order to stand independent under such conditions."

I agreed heartily with him, but the idea of creating an artificial frontier didn't occur to me until we had reached New York. Then George Gould had started west on an inspection tour. I intended to present my idea to him if I had time, but he never did. I was delivering lectures at the Hampstead Chautauqua last August, and one day John D. Rockefeller and Harold McCormick were among my auditors. I met them after the lecture and had a particularly long conversation with McCormick, in the course of which I happened to touch on my scheme for American boys. He became interested, and I elaborated it to him. Two days afterward he sent for me and told me that whatever money I needed for the plan he and Mr. Rockefeller would furnish.

The plan in detail calls for the establishment of many parks for the purpose of teaching the boys military life and the old wild west methods. The parks will be as large as it is possible to make them under local conditions. The park in New Mexico, for example, probably will cover thousands of acres. The sections will be restored to a wild state. A small military post and a few log cabins will be built here and there, but otherwise no structures will mar the grounds. The boys will sleep in tents and be much in the open air.

The plan is both philanthropic and educational, but not so philanthropic that the parks will not be expected to pay for the actual expenses of the summer maneuvers. This latter phase of the plan is one born of McCormick's pet schemes to help to dissipate the class feeling that he believes is developing in the United States. Where a boy applies for admittance to the camp through his parents it will be ascertained whether he is in a position to pay for his food and accommodations. If his parents are in such a position, twice as much as may be necessary to keep him will be charged, and he will be obliged to take another boy who is unable to pay his expenses as his guest. At that the paying boy will not be taxed more than $50 or $60, for only the actual cost of food and ammunition will be put on the bill. All the expenses of maintenance of grounds, etc., will be provided out of the fund given by the capitalists.

"The poor boy will become the rich boy's tent mate and companion," says McCormick, "and in the summer campaigns each will come to appreciate the good qualities in the other. When they grow up, better men because of their summer training in the open, representative persons in the poorer and wealthier classes will have a respect for each other that they might not otherwise have." It is expected that several hundred boys from New York, Chicago and other cities, one-half poor and one-half rich, will be accommodated on the Michigan frontier next summer.
